Lt. Governor's Office on Aging Awards $5,000 Seed Grant to Alzheimer's Family Services of Greater Beaufort

(Columbia S.C.) Caregivers and families of people suffering from Alzheimer's disease and related dementias in Beaufort County will have expanded opportunities available to them for support and education, thanks to a new program funded with a $5,000 start-up grant from the South Carolina Lt. Governor's Office on Aging.

Alzheimer's Family Services of Greater Beaufort's Deena Culp traveled to Columbia last Wednesday, June 28, to receive the award and attend a grantee workshop put on by the state Alzheimer's Resource Coordination Center (ARCC). ARCC Coordinator Fran Brannon presented the award on behalf of Lt. Governor André Bauer.

The organization's leaders say the grant funding will be used to develop an Alzheimer's disease Community Education Program targeting the Faith Community and Civic Groups. Presentations will be made to churches and civic groups as well as caregivers and the general public. A seminar for medical providers, nursing assistants and caregivers will be held in March, 2007.

According to Brannon, the seed grants provided by the Office on Aging's ARCC serve a critical role in helping jump-start new community programs that help the growing number of Alzheimer's patients in the state and the loved ones who care for them.

"This year's recipients will join 64 other programs statewide that were started with ARCC seed grants that are now self-sustaining and providing much-needed services in communities across the state," said Brannon.

The ARCC was created to provide statewide coordination, service system development, information and referral, and caregiver support services to individuals with Alzheimer's disease and related disorders, their families and caregivers. Each year, the Center provides seed money through a competitive grants process to help local communities build self-sustaining programs that will provide education and support to individuals in South Carolina suffering from Alzheimer's disease, their families and caregivers.

According to research from the University of South Carolina's Arnold School of Public Health, there are approximately 50,000 individuals in South Carolina with Alzheimer's disease and related dementias (ADRD), and that number is projected to grow to 90,000 by 2030. The impact upon South Carolina's Medicaid program, families and businesses will be considerable.

Since the average lifetime cost of care for an individual with Alzheimer's is $174,000, the cost to South Carolina families, individuals, insurance companies, businesses, Medicaid and Medicare would be $8.7 billion for the current 50,000 individuals diagnosed with ADRD. By 2030 that figure could increase to at least $15.7 billion.
